Tumor Ablation 26 2022 There is an enormous sense of excitement in the communities of cancer research and cancer care as we move into the middle third of the 21st century. For the first time, there is a true sense of confidence that the tools provided by the human genome project will enable cancer researchers to crack the code of genomic abnormalities that allow tumor cells to live within the body and provide highly specific, virtually non-toxic therapies for the eradication, or at least firm control of human cancers. There is also good reason to hope that these same lines of inquiry will yield better tests for screening, early detection, and prevention of progression beyond curability. While these developments provide a legitimate basis for optimism, many patients will continue to develop cancers and suffer from the debilitating effects, even as research moves ahead. For these individuals, it is imperative that the cancer field make the best possible use of the tools available to provide present day cancer patients with the best chances for cure, effective palliation, or, at the very least, relief from symptoms caused by acute intercurrent complications of cancer. A modality that has emerged as a very useful approach to at least some of these goals is tumor ablation by the use of physical or physiochemical approaches.

Managing Business and Service Networks Oct 07 2020 Most everything in our experience requires management in some form or other: our gardens, our automobiles, our minds, our bodies, our love lives, our businesses, our forests, our countries, etc. Sometimes we don't call it "management" per se. We seldom talk about managing our minds or automobiles. But if we think of management in terms of monitoring, maintaining, and cultivating with respect to some goal, then it makes sense. We certainly monitor an automobile, albeit unconsciously, to make sure that it doesn't exhibit signs of trouble. And we certainly try to cultivate our minds. This book is about managing networks. That itself is a new concept. We've been managing the networks that support our telephones for about 100 years, and we've been managing the networks that support our computers for about 20 years. What is new (and what motivated me to write this book) is the following: (i) the enormous advancements in networking technology as we transition the st from the 20 century to the 21 century, (ii) the increasing dependence of our activities on networking technology, and (iii) the commercialization of services that depend on networking technology (e.g., email and electronic commerce).
